

NONCOMMITTAL NEWSLETTER

A BOOKCLUB SHARING STORIES AND BUILDING CONNECTIONS

Our monthly catch-up

And with the end of July, draws a close to our second month of noncommittal, and what a month it's been! From seeing familiar faces to having new people attending every session, our family continues to grow, whilst our community strengthens.

Our two book clubs went amazingly, and the stories shared amongst everyone were insightful and exactly why we created this space. We extend our thanks to the team at York and 31K.

Additionally, at the end of the month we had a joint social with One More Chapter, an independent bookshop in the heart of Radcliffe. We did a book buy, where those in attendance were allocated a random person to buy for. Over the course of the evening, they got to know their favourite genres, likes and dislikes. Then bought them a book.

When we first got together, we all loved the idea, but seeing it action made us realise how great it was. Charlotte at One More Chapter was a great support and we are beyond thankful for the space.

Our special event with Savour

Next month, we have an upcoming social with Savour, a lovely space to share a drink, and tell us about your favourite reads, dnf's and current books.

Tickets now available via our website!

Writer's spotlight

With this, we want to spotlight any writing you have done, whether you have published before or want to share something new; we are open to all writers.

Written a poem, a quote, or an excerpt of a story? Get in touch! We want to share your work, and continue to build our community.

bayley

after debating for several months, bayley has made the plunge and has begun reading Dungeon Crawler Carl, and he's now wondering what took him so long. The prose is witty, whilst the story is exciting. he's excited to share at the next book club and wants to know is it worth getting into the entire series

georgia

georgia has just finished Hooked, and loved it. The arc of the two main characters was incredible, and the alternating perspectives kept her wanting more. If you've read it, or want to, grab her and chat about it. She's is now starting Immortal which has fantastic artwork on the cover

jeavon has recently finished Memorial, which is the first book he received from the new noncommittal library. he gave it five stars, and after a few sporadic dnf's, has started Sunstruck. already from the first couple of chapter's, he is certain he will love it

rob

rob is making his way through the Farseer trilogy by Robin Hobb and is loving it. He had read assassins apprentice years before, but now has returned to the story. The world is developed, whilst the prose is fantastic, sometimes a tough balance to maintain in fantasy
